

Hello Cyberwolves

This month we celebrate the great women in our lives because our society will be incomplete without them. They inspire change, honour our heritage, celebrate Ubuntu, and do small things with great love.

They are not only our wives, sisters, mothers, and friends; they are also our directors, managers, work colleagues and clients who are all working together to make cyberspace a safer and better place.

We are proud to be a part of the generation that will make the world a better place, so please show appreciation for these special women in your lives.

Happy Women's Day, South African SHE wolves. Keep shining.

NEWS

The POPIA Readiness Compliance Checklist answers two fundamental questions, what is the company's role, and where do we start to comply with POPIA. The assessment takes a high-level overview look across all eight conditions of the legislation. It takes broad brush strokes to get an idea of where the company may be falling short. READ MORE

Inappropriate social media posts about civil unrest can cause sparks of hatred. So before posting anything or replying to a post/thread on social media, think about the long-term repercussions this could have and how it may spiral out of control. READ MORE

COMMUNITY

This month we celebrate the women in our country and their role in the past and present to make our country and the world a better place. In their honour, we focus on protecting them and anyone who falls victim to sextortion, one of the most devastating cybercrimes. This crime invades and destroys privacy and self-dignity. Be sure to protect against sextortion. Check out the survival guide here.
