

Happy 10th Birthday, Wolfpack

I can still clearly recall the excitement of starting the business ten years ago. My vision was to establish an independent information security (before the days of cyber) business that would unite other like-minded professionals to help protect the community. Voila – Wolfpack was conceived – and the 'protection in the pack' theme was established. Companies are like families. We build them together as a team with passion, blood, and tears - combined with just the right mixture of ethics and innovation - to establish a trusted brand that will weather the storms, and storms there have been plenty!

Today I can look at what our team has achieved with a sense of pride and humbly thank all our clients and the greater security community for their ongoing support. Where to from here? We have recently sold a 56% stake in Wolfpack to a Level 1 BBBEE, Black Women-Owned Private Equity Investment Company. We are now a proud Level 2 BBBEE SA company – 56% black women and youth-owned. I am proud to be called a South African yet concerned at the level of unemployment and increasing cybercriminal activity. In partnership with its Alert Africa initiative & broader community, Wolfpack will continue in its fight to transfer skills and assist victims of cybercrime in African.

In closing – remember the code of the wolf:

Protect your family
Honour the elders
Teach the young
Be loyal to the pack
Voice your opinion
Stand your ground
Always leave your mark!
